(c) to (d) In the past, cleanliness work of 102 stations had been entrusted to private contractors on an experimental basis. These stations a! -.o included a few stations in metropolitan cities, for which Railways had entered into a contract with private parties, with the objective of beautification and improving maintenance and increasing revenue from commercial advertisements under the beautification-cum-maintenance scheme in lieu of sole advertisement rights. As the beautification-cum-maintenance scheme has not proved to be very successful, it has been decided to discontinue the scheme.

The existing contracts for cleanliness at other stations will also not be renewed in future and no fresh contract will be awarded.
